

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electrically conductive, wear-resistant, diamond-like coating is applied onto an outer surface of a conductive body. Such a conductive body is a slip ring of a motor. A dual ion beam process is used, in order to apply diamond-like carbon ions and metal ions onto the outer surface of the conductive body.